GERMANS DEPORT BELGIAN WORKERS

Returning Belgians, deported this year, bring new evidence of German treachery, according to the "Belgian Bulletin," received by the Department of Labor, which says:

"It is known that at the beginning of the year 1918, in spite of all their promises to the neutrals, as well as to the Pope, the Germans again deported from Lokoren (eastern Flanders) to the western front to labor at military works 27,000 men of the middle and working classes.

"It is announced at present that 200 of these unfortunates have been able to return to their native town. They are all in a lamentable state of health, and for the most part tuberculous, but on the other hand dysentery and typhus, underfeeding, cruel treatment, and blows have made very many victims among the men deported from Lokoren, and nothing marks the spot where they have been buried."

GERMAN WORKERS CHAINED TO JOBS

Drastic Measures Adopted Against Labor in Germany

Control of labor power in Germany is absolute, according to information just obtained from that country. The arrangement in force there contrasts strongly with the present plan of control in America through the United States Employment Service of the Department of Labor, and it is said that in no country of the allies has it been necessary to adopt any measures even approaching the drastic steps that have been taken in Germany.

Just how each workman is chained to his job may be realized when it is known that he cannot change positions without the written consent either of his employer or of a board of seven members appointed by the military authorities. The boards of seven include an army officer as chairman, two Government officials, two employers and two workmen. The workmen, therefore, not only have small representation on the board, but are denied the opportunity of choosing their own representatives, for that is undertaken by the War Office.

Any violation of the regulations concerning migration from one job to another is punished by heavy fine or imprisonment.

150,000 UNION MEN ARE UNDER ARMS

Of this Number in Australian Army 45,000 Have Lost Their Lives

The great part Australian labor has taken in the war was told to a audience of union men by former Premier Crawford Vaughan of the Australian government at Seattle recently. Mr. Vaughan expressed high appreciation of the work of the American Federation of Labor, under President Gompers and the Department of Labor.

Eight per cent of the population of the Dominion has enlisted, he said, and of the number of Australian troops, 150,000 were members of trades-unions. Of this 150,000, he continued, 45,000 have already given their lives.

Labor, he declared, is strongly supporting the cause of the allies in Australia. He declared that the Dominion had adopted its political system largely from the Government of the United States and urged American workmen to do all in their power to protect democracy in the present crisis.

1,422,000 WOMEN WORK IN BRITAIN

Thirty-six per cent of the employees of the government of Great Britain, outside the munition factories, in January, 1918, were women, according to an announcement by the Department of Labor. It is estimated that in all lines of work 1,422,000 women have stepped in to fill the depleted ranks of industry and nearly three-quarters of this number work for the government.

Give up your luxuries so that the Kaiser may be made to give up his ambition.

Experience the Best Teacher

It is generally admitted that experience is the best teacher, but should we not make use of the experience of others as well as our own? The experience of a thousand persons is more to be depended upon than that of one individual. Many thousands of persons have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs and colds with the best results, which shows it to be a thoroughly reliable preparation for those diseases. Try it. It is prompt and effectual and pleasant to take.
